Practice

About us

Livmore is a busy and thriving independent chartered surveying, project management and construction consultancy in Leigh-on-Sea and London. Founded in 1976, we have grown to become a highly regarded, medium sized practice offering a broad range of professional services for construction projects of all sizes.

Our multi-disciplinary team of industry professionals means that we have the capacity to handle the largest projects right down to small consultancy, party wall and contract administration services. By staying a focussed practice we can be more responsive to your projects requirements – ensuring there are key team members available at all times.

Our approach

At Livmore we strive for excellence in every project and we fundamentally believe that successful projects are best achieved through a commitment to friendly, creative and inclusive collaboration. Each and every member of the team is dedicated to providing the very best services and support they can for your project.

This close, collaborative approach also means we remain refreshingly transparent giving you extra peace of mind throughout your project. Our friendly and personable service really does make the difference. That's why we're trusted by major clients to become embedded in their operations or trusted to run and project manage their major works in an external capacity.

Working with the senior team

Unlike many other surveying practices and construction consultancies, at Livmore we firmly believe in the positive benefits of making sure you can communicate with the partners and senior staff working on your project. Our team are friendly, approachable and above all professional – we're positive your experience of working with us will be both easy and enjoyable.

Practice

Location

From our roots as a local practice formed in the historic fishing town of Leigh-on-Sea in Essex, we have grown to incorporate bases in Central London to meet the need of larger, nationwide clients and projects. We love our Leigh-on-Sea roots â€“ they give us a necessary grounding and a relaxed outlook that informs our approach to projects. Having a base in London has meant weâ€™ve been able to build substantial relationships with city and national firms providing our services to larger projects across the UK.
